Allowable Subject Matter

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Regarding to claims 1 and 16, the prior art fails to teach a combination of the steps of:

second output means for outputting said alternative output stream, wherein the relative timing between said selected portions of data in the received stream of data and in the alternative output stream is maintained so that a fixed latency is provided between said selected portions of data in the received stream of data and the output of those said selected portions of data, said selected portions of data received by the device occurring within the plurality of packets, and said means for identifying the packet beginning of each such packet has an output for controlling the timing of the output of the selected portions of data by said second output means, in the specific combination as recited in the claims.

Regarding to claim 17, the prior art fails to teach a combination of the steps of:

outputting the alternative output stream, wherein the relative timing between said selected portions of data in the received stream of data and in the alternative output stream is maintained so that a fixed latency is provided between said selected portions of data in the received stream of data and the output of those said selected portions of data, said first and second pluralities of portions of data occurring within the packet in the plurality of packets, in the specific combination as recited in the claim.

Regarding to claim 22, the prior art fails to teach a combination of the steps of:
timing control circuitry configured to receive the timing control signal and maintain a fixed latency between said second plurality of portions of data in the received data stream and said second plurality of portions of data in the second output stream, wherein the timing control circuitry comprises a state machine, in the specific combination as recited in the claim.

Regarding to claim 26, the prior art fails to teach a combination of the steps of:
timing control circuitry coupled to the output of the identifying circuitry and the second output circuitry and configured to maintain a fixed latency between the received data stream and the second output stream, wherein the timing control circuitry comprises a state machine, in the specific combination as recited in the claim.

Regarding to claim 30, the prior art fails to teach a combination of the steps of:
a timing controller coupled to the output interface and the input interface for maintaining a fixed latency between said second plurality of portions of data in the received data stream and said second plurality of portions of data in the second output stream, in the specific combination as recited in the claim.

Regarding to claim 40, the prior art fails to teach a combination of the steps of:
a state machine coupled to the means for identifying data packets and the means for storing the second plurality of portions of data, and configured to output the alternative output stream so as to maintain a fixed latency between said second plurality of portions of data in the received stream of data and said second plurality of portions of data in the alternative output stream, in the specific combination as recited in the claim.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
